Things to See:

Tucson often referred to, as the “Old Pueblo” was once part of Sonora, Mexico. Its history and architecture abounds at such places as San Xavier del Bac, (now a mission for the Tohono O’dham Indians) (established by Father Kino in 1629). Surrounded by mountains, Tucson can boast sunbaths in the valley and skiing on Mt Lemmon among the pines. The Santa Catalina Mountains form a huge triangle deeply cut canyon called Sabino. If you prefer to learn about the desert, the Saguaro National Park may be the drive for you or walk through the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum - an outdoor habitat of hundreds of flora and fauna native to the Sonoran Desert. Biosphere 2 is located 25 miles north of Tucson. It is a 3-acre closed ecological system complete with tropical rainforest, Savannah, desert, marsh and ocean. Looking up at the stars at night, Kitt peak Observatory boasts the largest telescope in the world. Ten miles and 100 years from town, is Old Tucson, the famous movie location where the movies “Arizona”, “Wild, Wild, West” and many of the John Wayne pictures were filmed.

Weather:

The weather in November should be in the mid 80’s and nights will get down into the mid or lower 50’s; so bring a jacket if you intend to be out in the evening.

Calculating Fish Load in a Hard Show Tank

“Fish Points” is used to evaluate the fish biomass in show tanks. Fish points are used to relate various sizes of fish on a common basis of comparison. Through experience we have determined that a hard show tank should not hold more than 80 points (where a twelve-inch fish is equal to 5 fish points). To help you determine how many tanks you will need at the show to accommodate your fish entries, use the form below to calculate your total fish points.

Note that this table has been placed in our show database and during the Koi show; we will run the program to determine the quality in your show tanks. For your fish’s safety, if your total fish points are over the maximum, we will ask you to move some fish to an extra tank. You will be charged for the extra tank.
